

Bio

Frank Vandenburg

Frank Vandenburg supports innovation and engages stakeholders by combining insights from Adult Education, Communications and Technology. For more than 20 years, Frank has worked to improve performance in PSE, Recognition of Prior Learning, competency development and most recently the health system. He has served as the Associate Director of the NB PLAR Action Group and the Council on Admissions and Transfer in NB as well as the Vice Chair of the Canadian Association for Prior Learning Assessment.

His experience includes collaborating on PLAR and Credit Transfer tools and processes, as well as competency assessment projects in various healthcare fields. He has also worked with other organizations through his consultancy, Vandenburg & Associates, to research ways to share credential assessment information nationally and to improve international videoconferencing for employment and skills assessment.

A graduate of Dalhousie University and l'Université de Moncton, Frank is currently the Executive Director, Citizen Engagement for the New Brunswick Health Council.
